Portfolio Risk

Potentially lower rewards Potentially higher rewards

Lower risk Higher risk

The portfolio is in this category due to historic risk and return characteristics demonstrated in the performance simulation, alongside the expected growth asset range between 45% - 75%. A risk indicator of "1" does not mean the investment is risk free.

Investor Profile

Typical investors in this portfolio are likely those looking for an enhanced income yield. Investors in the High Income portfolio are willing and able to accept moderate levels of volatility.

Portfolio Aim

The High Income portfolio seeks to provide an enhanced income yield from a portfolio of high income assets. The portfolio targets a distribution yield of 5% pa*.

*There is no guarantee this objective will be met. Capital is at risk.

Portfolio Characteristics

The portfolio is constructed using a blend of high yielding equity, fixed income and alternative investments. Whilst the manager seeks to moderate volatility in the portfolio – the asset classes used could mean higher levels of volatility in certain market environments.

Market and Portfolio Update

President Trump continues to redefine US relations with the world, putting pressure on Europe to increase defence spending and pressing forward with tariffs on key trading partners. However, stock market leadership so far this year has come from Europe and Asia and not the US, where the post-election 'Trump bump' has been fading. Inflation refuses to be cowed and hovering at 3% year-on-year is causing angst for central bankers who'd prefer to be cutting interest rates to support growth. The path to peace in Ukraine is not going to be a straight one, as Zelensky's public dressing down in the White House at the end of the month proves. Europe is feeling a little isolated, although it's been good news for the region's defence companies, whose share prices have reacted warmly on the need to rearm the bloc. Nevertheless, peace could be a boost to Europe's economy and stock markets, not least because it could lead to lower energy prices, which would be good news for all.

There were no changes to the High Income portfolio in February.
