Investor Profile

Typical investors in this portfolio are likely those looking to reduce portfolio volatility, whilst still seeking a positive absolute return. The portfolio may also be useful for investors seeking a home for excess savings or cash. Investors in this portfolio should have the tolerance and ability to accept modest capital loss.

Portfolio Aim

The Capital Preservation portfolio seeks to provide positive absolute returns, with low levels of volatility, from a diversified mix of fixed income, absolute return and multi-asset funds. The portfolio seeks to deliver returns in excess of cash*, net of fees, over the short-to-medium term.

*Bank of England base rate.

There is no guarantee this objective will be met. Capital is at risk.

Portfolio Characteristics

The asset mix is constructed with the aim of having a low correlation to traditional assets (bonds and equities) with the ability to deliver positive returns in a variety of market conditions. The beta (change in portfolio, relative to change in equities) is expected to be low.

Market and Portfolio Update

The Easter bunny had a busy month delivering President Trump's tariff shaped eggs around the world. These proved too sour for markets, prompting a 90-day pause. At present the international trade outlook appears bleak – though more positively some wheeling and dealing has begun. US stocks have floundered, while European stocks have triumphed in 2025. The EU is stirring, with spending on the rise; sometimes, the sleepy bloc needs a wake-up call to spring into action. It may be some time until the international trade situation becomes clearer; it is already causing supply chain issues and headaches for businesses. Trade between the US and China has effectively come to a halt. There are some tentative signs that negotiations are progressing. Nevertheless, the reputational damage to brand USA is significant, and the capital inflows the nation has enjoyed in the last decade, may now spread to the rest of the world.

In April we made no changes to the Capital Preservation portfolio.
